SculpSure

Millions of Americans struggle with a bit of resistant pudge. In the past, liposuction was the only effective treatment for spot reduction. Over time, non-surgical methods have evolved. Today, Dr. Pamela Carr offers SculpSure, the most advanced technology for non-invasive fat reduction.

SculpSure treatment

SculpSure is surgery-free and non-invasive. That means no anesthetic, needles, incisions, or scars. You relax comfortably while the hands-free applicator is placed in position. It sends focused light into deep tissue layers where it is absorbed by adipose (fatty) tissue, without harm to the surface skin, or to internal muscles and organs. SculpSure's proprietary technology uses cooling cycles so that treatment is well-tolerated. SculpSure typically takes 25 minutes.

SculpSure is FDA-cleared for fat reduction on the flanks and abdomen, but there is really no limit to areas that can be treated. Dr. Carr achieves excellent results on poochy belly fat, bra fat on the back, upper arms, thighs, and inner knees.

Why SculpSure technology is superior to fat-freezing methods

SculpSure is far less uncomfortable than fat-freezing techniques and takes far less time to complete a treatment.

Most fat-freezing systems use suction to pull fat into the device. This can result in "ledging," a noticeable ridging in the treatment area. SculpSure's laser penetrates under skin to melt fat with even, feathering reduction.
